AREAS OF EXPERTISE: Financial and strategic planning, asset management, cash flow planning, organizational and operational analysis, crisis management

PRIVATE SECTOR EXPERIENCE: Over the course of his long career, Jim pursued opportunities in a wide variety of industries where he held numerous financial and executive positions. His diversified background includes experience in printing and publishing, securities marketing, restaurant-night club operations, mining equipment manufacturing, pet supplies manufacturing, housewares importing and distribution, and internet marketing consulting.

Among many career highlights, Jim served as Chief Operating Officer at Kane Industries Corporation, where he presided over a 300% sales growth and dramatic improvement in profitability. In a previous role as President of Johnson Pet-Dor, Jim streamlined the manufacturing operation, led the development of a new premium line of pet access doors and ultimately negotiated the sale of the company to an internationally recognized supplier of pet products. At Mine and Smelter Corporation in Denver, he led the effort to transform the operations and administration of a company founded in the 19th century into a modern, profitable and thriving enterprise. Early in his career, Jim had first worked in audit and tax work at a national CPA firm (currently KPMG).
